Easter Is ‘the Core Story of Humanity’

Psychologist and author Jordan Peterson spoke about His wife Tammy Peterson’s faith and conversion to the Catholic faith on Easter of 2024. He is known for his biblical lectures on Genesis and Exodus in particular, which often appeal to both Christian and secular listeners. Her faith was formed through praying the Rosary while she struggled against a rare form of cancer. When asked by EWTN News correspondent Colm Flynn about what he thought about the Christian Easter message, Peterson said that it’s “the core story of humanity.” “I’ll speak psychologically about it and speak in terms of its literary echoes,” he said. “It’s a variant of the dragon-and-treasure story, which is the oldest story we have. It’s the core story of humanity in some fundamental sense — that in the darkest places, what’s of most value can be found.” Peterson noted that he was “not going to delve into theological matters” but that, “speaking strictly psychologically,” the Easter story describes “the worst that life and death can throw at us,” but then offers a “promise.” “The promise in the story is that, if that’s undertaken wholeheartedly, the consequence is redemptive, transformative and redemptive,” he said. “A resurrection of the spirit, a resurrection of the spirit eternally — that’s the promise.” When asked what the cross meant to him, Peterson said that “it’s the point where everything comes together.” “It’s the agony of life,” he continued. “With God’s grace, you might say that the triumph of life, in the face of agony, in the face of malevolence, that’s what it is.” “We’re very confused about what faith is in the modern world. We think that faith is your verbal assent to a collection of descriptive statements,” he noted. “That’s perhaps an element of faith. ... But the faith itself is, what would you say? It’s the willingness to presume that being and becoming is good despite tragedy and malevolence.” In the interview, Peterson reflected on the idea of a “calling.” “You’re called upon to climb Jacob’s Ladder, and it spirals infinitely upward — well, to where?” Peterson asked. “Infinitely upward isn’t a place — It’s a direction. Heaven is a place that’s perfect, that’s getting better at the same time.” “Anything that attracts your attention is a portal to the divine,” he added. “You’ll pursue that thing that attracts your attention, that’s your calling, and then it’ll transmute, and you’ll find yourself oriented in another direction. The spirit that remains constant through all the transformations of your calling — that’s the divine.” “That’s what the divine is; it’s ineffable because it can’t be fully revealed. It’s unlikely to be fully revealed in the course of your existence, but it calls you forward continually,” he continued. “That’s what the burning bush is in the story of Moses. It shows itself in different places for different people.” When asked what it was like to see his wife join the Catholic Church, Peterson said it’s a “miraculous thing to see.” “I loved my wife from the moment I laid eyes on her when I was a kid,” he said. “If you love someone, it hurts you when you see them deviate from the thing that draws you to them. And since she’s pursued her efforts at enlightening herself more thoroughly — and this investigation of Catholicism has been key to that — she’s much more who she is.” Though his wife became Catholic, Peterson said he remains “unlikely” to join the Church. When Flynn asked what was holding Peterson back from becoming Catholic himself, he responded: “I don’t think anything’s holding me back. Everybody’s got their own destiny.” Peterson said that whether this was part of his own “destiny” was “unlikely” because he, as he put it, “exist[s] on the borders of things.”

GOD OF LOVE AND LIFE
FATHER, SON and HOLY SPIRIT
"The love of God is this, that we keep his commandments. And his commandments are not burdensome, for whoever is begotten by God conquers the world."
1 John 5:4

But to the godless, conquering the world means getting as much as you can as quickly as you can. Do what makes you feel good and feel happy. Sin and hell? No worries, they simply do not exist. Unwanted child? No problem, there's always abortion. But we, the begotten by God, believe conquering the world means pick up your cross and follow the Lord. Through self denial, acts of charity and prayer the world becomes dead to us and we to it. At which point we have conquered the world! Do you know that in the US abortion is the number one cause of infant death.

Conquer the World, Support Life, Vote Life

Month Six of Developing Baby

Your spiritually adopted baby is growing beautifully now. Her weight is approaching 2 pounds. Babies that are born prematurely at this time have a very good chance of surviving. The medical advances in caring for extremely small newborn infants are extraordinary indeed!

Please join us on Monday, April 8 (the feast of the Annunciation) as we offer the 8:30am morning Mass in the Chapel, for the unborn children killed by abortion. A short recitation of prayers will follow at the monument outside of the main Church.

Padre Pio Prayer Anthology
Prayer #58

Focus Point:

Pope Francis has asked us to make 2024 a "Year of Prayer" with an emphasis on "The Lord's Prayer". How many times have we said the Lord's Prayer in our Life? Such a perfect and concise Prayer - but do we really focus on the words? Especially "Thy will be done". During Lent, we are reminded that as Jesus faced Crucifixion, he prayed, "Father, if it is possible, take this cup from me. Father, not my will, but Your will be done." As Jesus prayed for God not to abandon Him, He trusted his Faith in the Father and prayed for God's will to be done. So many of us face sadness, grief, illness and the everyday struggles that life can bring. Life doesn't always unfold according to "our" will and we may not know what God's will is at the moment, but we continue to pray for God's will to be done in our lives. God's will IS perfect. Our Faith tells us that Jesus will never abandon us in our need. Father Joe has said that "Praying strengthens our relationship with God". And when we pray for God's will to be done, He will bring us peace ... even in our suffering.

Prayer for God's Will:

Dear Lord, please bless me with insight to Your perfect will so that I may form my life's plan through Your inspiration. Help me to have the courage to face the trials and sufferings that are part of our earthly lives by turning to You for help when I feel hopeless. Remind me how faith guided our Blessed Mother through her life, and how she aligned herself with Your will. Help me to face adversity by offering myself to You and grant me the wisdom to discern what is meant for me in life. May I always keep You as the center of my life, and find joy in following Your will for me. In good times and in bad, may I always remember to thank You for always being there for me with Your comforting love and support. I ask that You send the Holy Spirit into my heart so that I may trust that following Your will in my most desperate moments will bring me true peace and happiness. Amen.

THE FOURTH WALL

A reflection for April 7, The Second Sunday of Easter

Actors in a play relate to one another in a world defined by the back and two side walls of a stage. There is an imaginary fourth wall that separates the world onstage from the audience. The audience can see through that fourth wall, but it is assumed that the actors cannot.

On a rare occasion, actors may break through that imaginary fourth wall and speak directly to the audience. In that moment, actors step out of the world created onstage and acknowledge the presence of the audience.

The same thing can happen in a work of literature. As we read a novel, we may unexpectedly encounter a comment that is not directly related to the story, but rather addressed to us. When that happens, our attention is drawn away from what we are reading. The author breaks through the imaginary fourth wall that exists between us and the story.

The breaking of an imaginary fourth wall occurs in Sunday's Gospel (John 20:19-31).

In that passage, Saint John relates the dramatic events of the first Easter Sunday evening. He tells us how the Risen Lord passed through locked doors and appeared before his startled disciples. The Lord wished them peace, showed them his wounded hands and side, blessed them with the gift of the Holy Spirit, and then empowered them to forgive sin.

John then goes on to relate what happened the following Sunday evening when the Risen Lord returned and challenged Thomas to move beyond his doubts and to believe. Thomas responded by making a profound profession of faith: "My Lord and my God."

John, the author of those Gospel stories, then breaks through the fourth wall and speaks directly to us. He says, "Now Jesus did many other signs in the presence of his disciples that are not written in this book. But these are written that you may come to believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that through this belief you may have life in his name."

John tells us he has not been writing an account of events for historians, but one designed to bring us to have faith in the Risen Lord so that like Thomas we can say of Jesus, "My Lord and my God."

What John did is what we are challenged to do. We are not simply to tell people about Jesus in a dispassionate way. We are to step forward and tell them we want to speak to them about Jesus so that they may have a relationship with him and "may have life in his name."

Like John, we have to take the risk and break down that "fourth wall" that keeps us from speaking directly to people about Jesus, the one who has brought joy and meaning to our lives. Tom Iwanowski from LookingToSunday.com Used with permission.

The Chaplet of Divine Mercy will be recited on Sunday, April 7, 2024, after the 9:00 and 10:30am Masses.
