Knowing your faith: What does it mean to be a 'practicing Catholic'?

On November 22, 2017

John Joy, For the Catholic Herald

You might run into the term "practicing Catholic" in various contexts: if you teach in a Catholic school, for example, or if you serve as a catechist in your parish, or as a Confirmation sponsor or a godparent, you are supposed to be a "practicing Catholic". But what does that mean exactly?

According to the Wisconsin Catholic Conference's Standards for Educators in Catholic Schools and Parishes, it means: "a Catholic in good standing who participates fully in the worship and life of the Church, and who understands and accepts the teachings of the Church and moral demands of the Gospel, as articulated in the Catechism of the Catholic Church."

This definition has three main components. Let's unpack them:

First, what does it mean to be "in good standing"? To be in good standing, one must lead a life of faith in keeping with the function to be taken on (e.g., as teacher, catechist, sponsor, godparent, etc.). One must not be bound by any canonical penalty legitimately imposed or declared. And one must not be obstinately persevering in manifest grave sin (including, but not limited to, living with an unmarried sexual partner or living in an adulterous second union).

Second, what does it mean to "participate fully in the worship and life of the Church"? At minimum, this means observing the seven precepts of the Church, which are:

- (1) You must attend Mass on Sundays and holy days of obligation and rest on those days from unnecessary servile labor.
- (2) You must confess your sins in the Sacrament of Reconciliation at least once a year.
- (3) You must receive Holy Communion at least during the Easter Season.
- (4) You must observe the days of fasting and abstinence established by the Church.
- (5) You must help to provide for the material needs of the Church according to your means.
- (6) You must observe the marriage laws of the Church.
- (7) You must participate in the Church's mission of evangelization.

Third, (TO BE CONTINUED IN NEXT WEEK'S BULLETIN).....
